

Risk

To laugh is to RISK of appearing like a fool.

To weep is a RISK of appearing sentimental.

To reach out for another is to RISK involvement.

To expose feelings and allow yourself to be vulnerable is to RISK exposing your true self.

To place your ideas, your dreams, before the crowd is to RISK losing them.

To love is to RISK not being loved in return.

To live is to RISK dying.

To hope is to RISK despair.

To try is to RISK failure.

But, RISKS must be taken,

Because the greatest hazard in life is to RISK nothing.

The person who RISKS nothing, does nothing,

Has nothing and ends up feeling like nothing.

He may think he can avoid suffering and sorrow but the truth is we can never fully escape the call and yearning that comes from not stepping into our purpose. We end up feeling hopeless and in despair, and we simply cannot learn, feel change grow and live fully!

Only the person who RISKS experiences true FREEDOM

Commitment

Until one is connected there is hesitance,

The chance to draw back, always ineffectiveness.

Concerning all acts of initiative (and creation)

There is one elementary truth, the ignorance of which kills countless ideas, goals and dreams;

That the moment you make a definite commitment oneself, the providence moves too! Wherever your attention goes, energy flows. And Neurons that no longer fire together no longer wire together. So, as you commit and work through those fears you are creating new pathways in your brain and literally rewiring your brain patterning.

From there all sorts of things occur as the new possibilities start to open up, that would have otherwise not occurred.

A whole stream of events will start moving into your field by making that decision, allowing unforeseen incidents, meetings and assistance, which before you may not have dreamt would come your way.
